THE RUN

And so to the St. Patrick Day Hash. A sea of green! Green with envy? No! But it did turn out to have an Irish feel about it. The Irish like a good argument and that’s exactly what we got in the circle – but more about that later.

A runners and walkers run - with a drink stop. Very good. Cool weather - but no rain. Very good. Excellent food – and plenty. Very good. And green piss – for the down downs. Very green

THE CIRCLE

So, let’s get to the circle. The Irish circle. It is true that not all hashers agree on all things. After all we are now in the age of Political Correctness. We’ve just had an election where Political Correctness became a lead consideration. But Political Correctness in the Hash??? I don’t think so – but then that’s my opinion. This was the 18C of all Hashes. You cannot offend, insult, humiliate, or intimidate – but isn’t that what hashing is all about? In Guiyang China where Mountain Hawk & I set up the hash the Chinese thought it was hilarious that they could charge fellow hashers with funny insults. They were not allowed to do this ordinarily. OK. Read on.

Troppo started the circle with an Irish joke. He read it! This set the Irish trend. Irish jokes to the front. Step into the circle Dead Squid. Let me digress for a moment. There are only a handful of jokers in the hash. There are lots of barrackers and loud hashers but only a few jokers. I think it's only fair that when a joker stands in the circle that the rest of the hash remain quiet and listen. Fair enough! The joker should only be judged by how funny, or not, the joke is. You can then voice your opinion after the joke if it's not funny but during the telling you should remain quiet – especially if you are one of the hashers who never tell a joke. Dead Squid was barracked more than once and presumably/possibly lost track of the joke and gave up on the telling and walked out of the circle. I've experienced the same, not even being allowed to start the joke. The idea of the circle is to create laughter – not suppress it.

Moving on! Now when has Friday Hash concerned itself with Hash Names? Since when has FH3 allowed the Hasher being named to object to his/her name? What was so wrong with a Physics Teacher being called Black Hole? One of the better suggestions of HogShit. Even Animule, a man of few words, chose one of his favourite words to express an opinion. Why after several years was Smelly Poo renamed? Oh yes, FH3 is now the 18C Hash. We need to rename our hash next week to please the Politically Correct among us.

So let's start with Little Prick. We'll need to rename her 'Florence Nightingale.' Doggy Doo will now be called 'Puppy Love,' or 'Hush Puppy.' Dead Squid will become 'Mr. Popular' – he'd prefer 'Super Stud.' Animule, you cannot call a man an animal, so he becomes 'Human.' Well almost. Ball Wrinkle could be called 'Clear Skin' or 'Smooth Operator.' RTT, that's Richard the Turd, likes 'King Richard' or 'Your Majesty.' Arse About would be 'Back to Front' or 'Don't point that Thing at Me.' Hog Shit becomes what? OK some names you can't change. I'd like to change my name TightArse back to my first hash na

So, will it be Politically Correct to ask me to write the Hasheet again?

Political Correctness is a poison that attacks the sense of humour. For people with chronic PC, feeling offended is about as good as it gets. Bill Leake
