THE RUN

How nice to be invited to the Head Office of Fremantle Hash for a run set by hares who are infrequent but always welcome runners on Friday. All set up, they were, nice fire to keep us warm on a fairly mild winter's evening and progress on their renovation project a topic for discussion by those of us who hadn't been there for a while.

We were told by Screwdriver that there were five drink stops – just a ruse to keep us all on trail but it was fairly easy to follow trail because the farrows were white, long and thick. (No racism, sexism or intellectual snobbery intended.) Up and down, round and round Fremantle we went with a few streets to cross and a strange loop over the monument hill. Leafy lanes there were and old houses, reminiscent of lands we left behind. Finally we came to a drink stop with Screwdriver in attendance serving – guess what – screwdrivers. If there were to be five drink stops placed at equal distances it was going to be a long run, but no, we came upon the 'On in' not too much later and the run turned out to be just the right length.

THE CIRCLE

It was not easy for GM to get everyone assembled in something resembling a circle, spread as they were around the grounds, nibbles and drinks. He finally established his authority and called in the hares. Some quit-witted comic said the run was 'screwed up'; the drink stop was nice, and Head Case declared it an excellent run, so we sang them the 'Hares' song and that was that.

Replicar expressed his disappointment about not scoring a beer at a party and mused about carrots and olives being no substitute

Mountain Hawk charged High Beam with mobile phone dependency

Rock Bottom charged Mountain Hawk with one-upmanship because MH's likelihood of failing a driving test is twice as high of that of Rock Bottom

Whoreda on Shrek for abusing the little people

GM then charged Shrek with assembling a short harem

Tightarse charged Slugger because she said she likes it long – however, it was deemed a limp charge

Radar charged Skippy#2 with something that prompted the GM to break into a rendition of 'YMCA' with arm accompaniment – not a pretty sight

Mountain Hawk enquired as to the identity of the very tall people who could reach the very high washing line –

Ballwrinkle and Puki were the only possibilities – then someone called Ballwrinkle a Canadian
