THE RUN

Well, it rained and we were glad of the cover at the meeting point. The lads were out practising their soccer skills, though. After all, soccer originated in northern Europe and is a winter game there. You would never have a chance to practise or to play if you depended on the weather. Low Beam was there for a while and thanked us for our concern and flowers during her time in hospital. Hare High Beam was deep in conversation with GM, asking for a live hare run because the trail had been erased in the recent downpour. A dispute ensued as to who should be the hare and GM Hogshit reluctantly took on the task. The main worry was that we'd miss the drink stop through lack of farrows. The route was marked on a hand-drawn map and we set off after Hogshit with the usual noise and hullabaloo.

There were farrows still to be seen in some areas but they had been washed out in others so we were glad of the hand that guided us through the streets and lanes of Jolimont and Subiaco. A loud conversation was heard up ahead and a person on a balcony seemed to be discussing hash matters with Replicar, amongst others. The thought occurred to me that Replicar was doing his usual beer begging but it turned out that Popeye, a hasher well known to some of the group, lived in one of the houses we passed. He was so intrigued by the sound of a passing hash that he ran downstairs and handed out bottles of beer. Alas, Replicar had already moved along by this time and, for once, failed to score a free beer when lots of others had been lucky.

We had to stop a few times whilst the map was perused and turned this way and that to see where we were supposed to be going. Suka told us that the drink stop was at High Beam's new house and Slugger sang out "I've got it on Maps" – how nice. Technology notwithstanding, we set off after Hogshit and the raggedy bit of paper High Beam had provided until – eventually we came upon a nicely laid table with bubbly and chocs and the opportunity to examine the new abode.

THE CIRCLE

High Beam informed us that Blue Moon was a co-hare, so they were both judged in a rather confusing moment with GM's umbrella dripping on everyone even though he was under cover – the drink stop rated a mention, of course.

LTNS White Pointer, Shifty, Blue Moon, Animule, Bell Boy, Bark Off

CHARGES

RA Suka was deemed to have failed in her duty to control the weather but she tried to blame the hares and drink stop for holding us up – she failed there, too

Tightarse was late joining the circle from his car

Rockbottom was done for refusing to be the map carrier

GM awarded himself an accolade for excellent map reading and White Pointer joined him as a fellow leader

Shadow insisted on blowing her own trumpet and declared the newly acquired jackets a great success

A district court case ensued with Meladjusted accusing Shadow of not knowing how to get discounts

Tightarse made reference to THE MAP – composed by a woman and followed by Hogshit – what chance did we have?

In his musing moments on the run he had composed a version of “Mapmaker, Mapmaker Make Me a Map, where is the trail, this is all crap.” which he delivered to some applause and Wenchy was rewarded for her commendation

Replicar charged Slugger with being unable to read her phone

GPS charged Dead Squid with every Hash Cash's nightmare - paying in change – 20c coins

Double D brought RA's attention to Shrek and Bark Off as jabber jaws candidates

Doggy Doo did something

Replicar charged Suka with usurping the GM and telling us where to go

BIRTHDAYS High Beam, Hogshit

DUMMY SHORTS Dash nominated Slugger/ Suka you can't tell them apart – Replicar nominated GPS – then Rambling for so distracting GPS he almost missed his opportunity to be a candidate – Rambling won/lost

JOKERS Soixante told us how much weight Arseabout could lose running away from a fat man
Dead Squid told us one about allergies and knackers

GENERAL BUSINESS

Shadow ordered winter jackets which are now available for collection

No further vacancies for the Rotto trip next weekend – Soixante will be the GM there

High Beam, Cookie & Sir Fumbles are organizing a trip to Myalup during the winter months

GRUB Cassoulet – lovely winter fare

THE SONG Tightarse/Mountain Hawk – next week's hares – no dogs please, we have one already
