Date: 24 July 2015
Venue: 171 Warton Road, Thornlie

THE RUN

I don't think Radar's friend, Janet, knew what she was letting herself in for when she agreed to have the hash at her beloved abode, but she soon found out. Not only was she the host and the only person really concerned about burning the soup, she had to undergo a public hearing to boot! Radar was quite sanguine about her (soon to be ex) friend's dilemma and steadfastly refused to take part in soup stirring. I know all this because I was invited specially to be an assistant chef and had to miss the run as a consequence – a great sacrifice on my part. High Beam was quite taken aback at the start of the run to turn around in mid-sentence and find me gone. The pearls of wisdom she no doubt intended to impart were lost forever on the street outside 171 Warton Road.

The suggested parking area worked well, once we had driven past it, executed a u-turn and found the entrance, though Shrek and Bark Off were unable to locate the house until the runners had been, gone and returned. Shrek is our official Hash Horn but, on this occasion we had to manage without his usual enthusiastic booming and it was left to Brave Tart, Troppo and Replicar to lead them home. Nice of Shrek to grace us with his presence, though.

THE CIRCLE

Hare Radar was called into the circle with assistant Meladjusted and poor old Janet, who had offered her home and stirred the soup only to discover that she was to undergo a public trial. Phantom had clocked the run at 37 minutes and Megawat, Sybil and Brave Tart all had their say, commenting on the numerous times the pack had been split up. Then, would you believe, Shrek, the phantom horn, tried to have his two pennyworth.

LTNS Head Case, Shaftsniffer and Franger, on his second run with Friday hash

VISITORS Janet, charming hostess and conscientious stirrer of Radar's soup

CHARGES

GM thanked Shrek for his commentary on the run he didn't do

Fumbles charged Meladjusted for his inability to read a map

Hash Cash Double D had found a UK 10 pence coin in her money bag so she charged the On Sec with being the culprit – just because of my English accent. Dead Squid claimed the 10p since he's travelling soon to UK

RTT charged Smallgoods with tree branch abuse and flora decimation

Meladjusted tried to charge Wenchy with mis-handling a bowling ball but GM deemed the charge belated and it was reversed

Replicar charged Janet with being familiar with Ian Vinny, otherwise known as "Bollock Washer"

Mountain Hawk Charged Shrek and Bark Off for missing everything

GPS charged Bark Off for failing to sport hash apparel – where's Haberdash?

Meladjusted then rose to the defence of Haberdash, claiming she didn't force a shirt on anyone

BIRTHDAY Head Case had had a big one since we last saw her

DUMMIES

GPS was a contender for the dummy shorts because, in his alternative perspective on life, he loves 'em

Meladjusted had a strong case for his misleading map reading

Then, there was the much less favoured option of a carry-over. The vote went the way of Meladjusted.

JOKERS

Meladjusted told one about farting on a bus

Rambling Rose told us about blondes and cops

Dead Squid had one about brand names

Horny read one about Curly, the game warden and the difference between Queensland and WA ducks

Cookie related the dilemma of the priest and the MLA's confession
