THE RUN

We just made it – five minutes before the start of the run. None of the niceties. No “Good evening, Mountain Hawk. How nice to see you.” None of that stuff. “Where’s the book?” was what I heard from all directions. Agitated and heavy with guilt, I laid the sacred tome upon the lid of the recycling bin. “It’s too late now,” declared GM. “We’ll have to deal with it after the run.” only adding to the sense of ignominy and shame poor old On-Sec had brought upon herself. “She should be forced to resign. Such behavior is not becoming of her position. She is bringing the noble office of On-Sec into disrepute.” “Well,” said I, “I haven’t done anything illegal. I love this hash very much and I’m very, very sorry. I only wish I had apologized earlier and, anyway, everyone else is up to no good, too. Please let me keep my prestigious, powerful and lucrative position”

Halfway through the run I decided I would never wear my hair in a coiffed French roll again and chatted away furiously with all and sundry in an attempt to expunge forever the image of our much maligned Madame Speaker, whose fate should be an example to us all.

“Last time I was here this was all bush.” Funny how everyone said that. Anyway, it’s certainly not bush now but the hares are very familiar with Tapping and they set a run that took us along lots of the new streets and past new houses and brought us all home, runners and walkers at about the same time. Quite good, really.

THE CIRCLE

Mouth Organ and Ballwrinkle were allowed to give their own assessment of the run, whereupon Mouth Organ declared it “Brilliant”. The circle must have been in agreement because there was no argument and I think they will be allowed to set a run again.

Double D and Dead Squid have an assignation in Dubai

GPS charged Radar because his housemate had been on Facebook and detected Radar's mark in Huntingdale – by witchcraft or criminality?
