Run: 1287
Hare: Sir Fumbles

Date: 28 August 2015
Venue: Wellard Oval, Wellard Rd, Wellard

THE RUN

Nice parking spot above the road and below the oval. A couple of lights outside the pavilion suggested the possibility of open loos but there was disappointment in that regard. There were plenty of bushes around the perimeter, though. Quite a good crowd assembled, in spite of expectations of some hashers that the run site would be too far south. Remember, we do travel just as far north from time to time.

Sir Fumbles told us that the run was extremely well marked with large farrows but might be a bit on the long side. Walkers should make sure to stick to the trail marked with a 'W'. Well, he was right. We did follow the 'W' but somehow ended up on the runners trail, anyway. The full moon over the bush helped to light the way but there were some eerie pathways which made the dancing torches of the runners up ahead very comforting.

Why Shrek, our Hash Horn, chose to join the walkers this evening was never explained but when we seemed to be following a trail that looked suspiciously familiar, he could be heard bellowing for a GPS. Slugger kindly offered him her mobile phone, which he used as a replacement horn to direct us back over the railway track and back to base, where runners and walkers seemed to arrive at about the same time.

THE CIRCLE

Sir Fumbles and Cookie faced the mob and someone suggested it had been a dry run. Tightarse said Fumbles' prediction that the run was tough had proved to be true. It was indeed "well hard and women who say size doesn't matter are shallow". GM declared the run "excellent and picturesque".

DUMMIES

White Pointer finally donned the shorts he had been awarded two weeks ago, thinking he would have to wrack his brains to nominate a new recipient. Even GPS refused them because he knew what was afoot. Unknown to White Pointer

Mountain Hawk had been awarded the shorts last week and had been told to pretend she was wearing them on the run.

This was a break with tradition but GM is in charge. So, a vote was called for and Mountain Hawk found no refuge in hiding behind tall men. There was a resounding roar in her favour. I suppose now that the shorts have gone to a housewife they'll have to be washed, ironed and wrapped in scented soap.
