Run: 1467    Date: 29th March 2019    Hare: Wacuda    VENUE: 36 Glyde Rd, Lesmurdie 6076

A reminder to all hashers that we are a social group, and it is the responsibility of all to ensure no one is forgotten or left out on trial. No matter if you're a walker or a runner, please take the time to pause a little longer on trial, for example at checks, to make sure you can see the last person.

THE CIRCLE: This week 40 hashers turned up ready to explore the magical land of Lesmurdie, like Alice in Wonderland with its Cheshire cat and magical creatures, some of the runners with their lights looked like dancing fire flies hovering their way through the hills. Wacuda set a trail that resembled a caterpillar with a top hat walking off, and thankfully our own Cheshire cat in the form of Wacuda, followed the runners out on trail. Helping to ensure all the runners including the forgotten tail enders made it to the drink stop. Where we were able to lick our wounds and express our way home.

D Cell thought the run was long and hilly, and only a smidge from being perfect as the farrows had a confusing bend to them, which seemed to be trying to trick or invite runners down driveways or onto the road. Score: 9

Little Prick really enjoyed the walk, she found the surrounding woods and hills to be relaxing, and the trail was clearly marked scoring a 9.7

Visitors and LTNS: None this week

CHARGES: The RA, on his last attendance before he makes his pilgrimage to the holy land, which will see him gone for a month, kept it short and sweet tonight with only a few charges. He began by charging the Hare for marking the trail while on a bender, for surely this was the reason for the bent farrows.

Tightarse, despite continually denying it was him, was charged for tripping up Phantom in the woods.

The Hare was once again called out and accused of starting WW3 against Dosh over the location of the drink stop, rest assured the right side won with Dosh winning the battle.

D Cell had an accolade for Franger, who managed to fool Sadar, by claiming while being on the right trail that he was instead on a false trail, once Sadar was back out of sight Franger called the trail.

Tightarse charged Franger for thinking that he was not a runner, in fact an elite athlete, however the GM and the circle disagreed the charge was reversed back to Tightarse.

Horney Flasher charged Little Prick for having new shoes.

Dosh charged Phantom for causing concern and taking some bark off her knees, Phantom agreed with the charge and received a loud cheer when she assured everyone that no nails were broken or damage in the fall. Phantom called out Slugger, who attended to her wounds, to join her in the down down.

GENERAL BUSINESS: The GM reminded all hashers that the run fee of a whopping $3 is compulsory, run/walk, sit and stay, eat or not, the fee is paid.

RA handed over the reins, only metaphorically, as he needed the reins to his camel for his journey, to Mountain Hawk who will be standing in RA in his absence.

Mountain Hawk reminded hashers that she is taking orders for leggings, they are very ideal for winter, at this stage the cost is around $54, people can email or see Mountain Hawk to place their order. Refer to attachments in the email for design and sizing

The GM mentioned that we are looking at July/August for a weekend away and asked for expression of interest so that the appropriate number could be accommodated.

BIRTHDAYS: None this week

DUMMY SHORTS: Beau – even though he had already left, D Cell felt it worthwhile mentioning the dumbness of Beau running home to do the watering. Sadar was charged for being a dummy in trying to pay D Cell the run money. Call Girl Maussie and Sybill were nominated for initially following the walkers at the beginning of tonight’s run.

The winner was Sadar.

JOKERS: Cookie – husband goes to Centrelink to claim his pension, however, forgets his card and has to prove his age.

GM – Hogshit returns to the wrong house after a night out at the pub.

- Two blind pilots.

Troppo earned a down down for his quick add on to the GM’s last joke
