Run: 1588

Date: 10th December 2021

Hare: Mouth Organ

Venue: Houghton Park, Carramar

Run NOR, Full tank of fuel – check; mobile phone fully charged – check: RAC membership renewed – check; maps onboard – check; tyres replaced – check; new engine – check. And we're off, co-pilot Rowdy Rabbit picked up, what could go wrong? Absolutely nothing. No traffic and arrived early to the usual carpark beside the park. A slightly smaller group of 33 FH3 runners were assembled to be advised by Ballwrinkle that the run will start five minutes after the usual 1900 hrs so that we wouldn't miss out on Perth's attempt to look like Blackpool Illuminations... And we were off and running, well some were running with the rest walking at various levels of enthusiasm and vigour. The trails were well marked with some good checks and the runners were soon lost out front, though I didn't recall seeing where the trail split and neither did Mel Adjusted. Could this mean that we both qualify for white sticks?... It wasn't too long and we were into fairy light territory with all manner of Christmas decorations and the latest in solar powered multi-coloured lighting systems. Then we heard the voices of young 8-9 year old hoodlums shouting obscenities at us from a Party Bus doing a tour of the area. In fairness they were probably a little confused at seeing wanna be Father Christmas's out jogging rather than rounding up Rudolph and his mates. A well appreciated Drink Stop provided everyone with some liquid refreshments just prior to the final leg back to the run site.

The Semi-Circle was formed as the GM took up her spot on the golden toilet as she got things underway. Now, I feel that this is an opportune moment to let you all know that D Liva Rants let me know that she was disappointed that she has not yet been able to Christen her golden port-a-loo. Its purpose in life is to get erstwhile hashers who have crossed the line of decorum, to be placed on said Golden Throne and humiliated. I'm guessing that it wont be too long before some poor bastard gets nailed, so to speak, using biblical expressions. The GM's first announcement was that Dead Squid is pissing off and that this was his final run. There were shouts of delight and shock and the expectation that at some point he would be back as a returner. Tightarse reckoned the Hash wouldn't be the same without him and I was watching to see if any money changed hands. But then came a genuine offer from Dead Squid to kick off the charity drive early by throwing in a generous $50. Good on yer DS. More on this later.

The GM then nailed the RA by calling in White Pointer to show him the error of his ways from his last weeks misuse of his power with the Golden Throne and the splashing of the GM with (holy) water and explaining to him that no one stands taller than the GM in the circle. The GM also mentioned that cows crap 20 times a day, but I'll be bugged if I can remember what the punchline to that was?!! Which means I can look forward to a free beer! The Run Discussion saw Hogshit declare that the run was great with a good use of tunnels and that the hare had been well taught giving the run a rating of 9/10. The Walkers report was presented by Radar who thought it was a lovely walk with all the lights, but then she got caught up in the moment making reference to having seen Jesus and what an excellent experience it all was. See, the Hash can be religiously enlightening for some people. Come back next week for the final Christmas instalment and more Holy moments...

White Pointer then took up his roll as RA with his hat on upside down, which few realised including himself. Charges were flying fast and furious as was the holy water (beer). First in was Ballwrinkle for holding up the run start time confusing everyone, especially Slugger who thought that the run started at 6pm...!!! Hogshit raised a question about a key to chastity belt and this had Mountain Hawk ask what is the key really for? Another case of come back next week for the thrilling adventures of unsolved mysteries. Meanwhile Troppo was brought in with comments about him becoming appealing and skin loss...!!! Then Radar was confused by Max Factor and the new Hasher (yet to be named) Judith was brought in complete with red shopping bag. More holy water dispensed with gay abandon. Then it was the turn of Sir Fumbles to come into the circle for using the FH3 to try and recruit committee members for the Bike Hash. He was soon sent on his bike to you know where. Then the RA took some heat for wandering around the circle with a bottle of beer with the top still on... Was he going to suck it off or bite it off?? Or break the Guinness Book of Records for the longest lasting bottle of beer...

Talking of beer bottles and the beer supplies, it was mentioned just maybe certain Hashers have been caught short (no cash) in the past and had 'borrowed' a bottle/can fully intending to reimburse the cash tin at a later date, but then maybe dementia got the better of them. So, the simple suggestion is that if you can't borrow some funds, just slip an IOU in the cash tin and then we can quietly remind you later about how much is owing...

Jokers: Just me this week and I promise to do better next week...

Visitors (0) and LTNS (2) were invited in for a beer shared by Shifty and Molly Duka (?) (not my fault if you don't sign in with the red book... And can everyone please attempt to write your name with better clarity than a three year old.

Zero Hero's were a plenty and came in two groups. First in were Picked Piker (10); Shifty (290); Radar (420); Slugger (530); Dead Squid (660). In the 2nd group were White Pointer (400) and High Beam (600) each receiving their 00 badges and they were accompanied by Phantom (1350). Well done and congratulations all.

Dummy Shorts: GPS was in deep kimchi for forgetting to bring/wear his shorts, but all was not lost, the Christmas Special Dummy Shorts were brought out and presented to Animule on account that last week he forgot where he had parked his car...

Announcements: The FH3 will be sponsoring and making a donation to SOLARIS. So please dig deep and bring some spare cash next week to throw in the tin for a very worthy cause. As mentioned early, Dead Squid has started the ball rolling, so don't be shy and do remember to bring a cash donation of any amount, please.
Next weeks run will be Christmas themed, so please dress accordingly...
