Date: 21st January 2022

Hare: Wenchy & GPS

Venue: Fremantle

It was a special event that was well put together and well attended by a variety of Hash clubs. A special mention and thanks must go to Screwy, Wenchy and GPS. Undoubtedly there were others and my apologies for not including everyone, but you know who you are and Thank You to you all.

Screwys pad opened up at five and I got there by about 5:25pm and it was already action stations. Coldies of all types were on ice and the food truck was in place getting ready. Hashers were starting to arrive from all corners of greater Perth to pay their respects to Rambling. Hashers were arriving by car, bus, train and Shanksies Pony. I had caught a bus and walked the last half a klick to the venue. There were pool cars with designated drivers and the grass area opposite Screwys was becoming quite busy.

Numerous ladies were doing a great job of passing around cold platters of biscuits and cheese and there were guys taking turns behind the bar to ensure that no one was going short of hydration fluids. A lot of fellow hashers were sharing stories and lots of photos were being strung up along the wall as memories of hashing with Rambling.

As we approached 7pm, your GM, D Liva Rants helped assemble everyone to head off to Monument Hill to watch the setting of the sun. There was a run for those inclined and this wasn't wasted on Troppo, Hogshit & Sardar. The rest of us walked along to the Memorial at Monument Hill. A drink stop was dispensing champagne and orange as we gathered to watch the sunset on a beautiful Perth evening with not a cloud in sight.

Once the sun had dropped below the horizon, moving tributes were made by Wenchy and GPS with glasses raised and an appropriate moment of silence as we remembered and honoured Rambling.

We then headed back to Screwy's where the food truck was in full action and your Friday Hash House Harriers were assembled for a short circle over the road next to the beer truck/trailer. Troppo gave a brief description of the run saying it was excellent, though it appeared that Sardar had managed to short cut it... No Walkers report was needed and D Liva Rants gave Wenchy and Bluey a Down Down.

We were able to call in a number of LTNS hashers to take a beer with us, consisting of RTT; Arseabout; Proart & Bluey. I hope I have got their names correctly listed.

White Pointer came into the circle to call in GPS so we could get him to wear the new Dummy Shorts and acknowledge him and pay our respects to him in the new Dummy Shorts, which he seemed to quite like.

Wenchy was soon back in the circle for another DD for being formerly over dressed, which she gladly acknowledged and took the drink.

Cookie and Sir Fumbles were brought in for a DD for dancing and Sir Fumbles for forgetting his hearing aid (eh what? Who said that?)...

We had two quick jokers with myself and then Radar who told a joke that was one of Ramblings classic golden oldies with Wenchy having the final say. This just left for us to close the circle with our Hash Hymn led by Mountain Hawk.

That enabled us to re-join the rest of the gang over the road and get in line at the food truck and keep the free-flowing beer, wine and champers going as more stories were shared and told. The ladies and a few of the men decided to put their dancing shoes on as the music was cranked up and it's at this point that I stopped recording what was happening, as it's true to say that what happens at the hash, stays at the hash, doesn't it Rowdy...???

In closing, I'd like to think that Rambling was looking down on us with a smile as I think we did her proud as we collectively said our Good-byes to her. Gone but most definitely not forgotten.
