Hare: Sir Fumbles & Cookie

Date: 5th August 2022

Venue: Wellard

The Commonwealth Games are well underway and the FH3 has reached another Friday evening with new records to be recorded. New Records I hear you say, what new records? Yes, in some ways we don't break any records, but we do achieve a new set of records that to the people attending each week, are records to them and as such deserve to be recorded and shared to those attending and those who would've liked to have been there, but for a variety of reasons were not there. And the first record of the night was the attendance number of 25 Hashers who made the effort to drive south to Wellard.

As the numbers started to build up prior to the 7pm kick-off, so the question was raised, is it raining? Prior to the start of the run, the general consensus was that it wasn't raining, but that there was some moisture in the air. GPS got a little confused by saying that it's the On Secs job to keep the rain at bay, but I had to quickly enlighten him as to this being the sole work of the RA (White Pointer). Who had as usual made his way to run site by some miracle means of unseen transportation leaving us all to ponder just how much power the RA really has...

Our erstwhile GM, aka D Liva Rants, made her appearance just prior to the kick off time gathering us around to hear the run directions from Sir Fumbles. He noted that there were two runs, one for the runners and a short cut for the walkers, with both joining up at a Drink Stop. And another Friday Hash Run was set in motion.

The Drink Stop was set up under the awning of a medical facility, though it was a shame that it was closed as a certain Meladjusted just might've checked in as he did the splits coming down the driveway entrance on the slippery slope caused by, yes, you guessed it, precipitation, otherwise known as light rain... RA Get back here, this is your baby... The Hares had put together quite a concoction of Mulled Hot Wine that was heated on site and served piping hot, well it was hot to first arrivals. Cookie had put all sorts of magical ingredients in there that must remain a trade secret. Lots of lollies were there for the sugar praved and for those not so inclined there was H2O.

On On back to the Run Site to be greeted by the smells of what was being served up later on. Our GM did the usual trick of getting the mob to try and form a circle of some sorts, some insisting on staying under the cover of the awning with others standing outside, though by this time the RA had finally come to grips with stopping the (light) rain. It was time to get the reports in on what was thought about the run. On in first was Spackle to report on the Runners run. Spackle thought that there wasn't enough hills but was otherwise a brilliant run with a perfect drink spot. For the Walkers it was the turn for GPS to comment, who thought that it was a surprisingly good run that was very well done and no one got lost, thus gaining a rating of 9.5

Visitors & LTNS – There were quite a few LTNS, some of whom were more than a little shy about stepping forward for a Down Down (Shadow, Wenchy & Buttered Buns) those who were happy to put their hands up were; Spackle; Wisie; Beau and Replicar. Welcome back to all. And it was good to have the Piss Pourers back in action (Bell Boy)...

The GM got straight down to it calling in our RA White Pointer for failing to keep the rain away on the run, though in his favour he did get it to finish for the circle, but then it was noted that the GM got her new haircut wet. So that was it, a DD was the first order of the day. Then the circle was handed over to the RA for Charges. But White Pointers first attempt was quickly reversed by Sardar (rightfully so) over claims he had something to do with the rain. So the RA had another beer Down Down in quick succession. He then moved his attention to Shifty over claims that she had led Shadow astray by taking her to a strip show... Really, I didn't think that anyone could lead Shadow astray and if indeed a strip show was it, how come Shifty didn't invite any of the men to join in??? That was worthy of more than just a DD... Buttered Buns was next in for becoming a medico come ambulance driver taking her neighbour to the doctors for stitches. That was her story for being a late arrival and missing the run itself, but finding the drink stop. Next in was Bell Boy for standing in the circle half dressed whilst the rest of us were close to freezing to death fully dressed. The comment was that he possibly had no feelings... Plus he was being recognised for being a no-show last week, leaving us to practise our Down Downs with empty cups and he was spotted parking sideways. Our GM was nominated for a DD, but she called in a proxy and so Slugger stepped in to take one for the GM, well done Slugger. There were no other charges from the circle.

Zero Hero's this week were made up by Hogshit (560 runs); Radar & Meladjusted (450 runs each) and Wisie (280 runs). Congrats and well done to all.

Birthdays – There were none this week, but next week will be plenty, so anyone with a penchant for birthday cake, I suggest that you make this week's run.

The weeks Jokers were Cookie; Gadget; Wenchy & Troppo. Fishing was a major topic as was a Cowboy and an Englishman; Welshman & an Irishman with a pancake...

Dummy Shorts – Shadow was here at long last and the weeks new contenders were; White Pointer (rain); Meladjusted (splits); Shadow (?); Rowdy Rabbit (bait) and Inspector Gadget (car door lock remote control screw up – Rowdy). Yours truly got it hands down, no questions asked. And after 49 runs, I gladly accepted the honour and put the Dummy Shorts on, but not before sniffing them to make sure that all was well.

NEXT WEEKS Run 1621 12th August Troppo – Greenwood
Penistone Park, Penistone Street

The circle was closed with the Hash Hymn being led by Radar & Cookie

The evenings meal was presented by Cookie, a lovely bowl of curried sausages with lots of veggies followed by apple crumble served with custard, thank you Cookie
