Run: 1634

Hare: Tightarse

Date: 11th November 2022

Venue: Peppermint Grove

What can I tell you that you don't already know, it was Friday evening and time to go Hashing. This week the Hare was Tightarse and the venue was that suburb known for all its slums and destitute people. Yeh, that's right, Perth's worst ghetto otherwise known as Peppermint Grove, the one just next door to where Tightarse and Mountain Hawk are forced to endure and live, Mosman Park.

A total of 28 Hashers took upon themselves to become intrepid wanderers to drive through this part of Perth where they took their own lives into their own hands to avoid being crushed by Rolls Royce limos and Bentley SUV's with Porsche's flying around with gay abandon being driven with not a care in the world. But hey, the run site had 24 hours toilets and lighting till the end of dawn. That is once it was found with multiple park locations. Where all roads led to Rome and the coliseum.

The start of the run was divided into a case of us and them. The us was the Walkers and the them were the Runners. The Runners were (politely) told where to go, off towards the river and The Walkers were told to hold back to be sent off in another direction. Needless to say I was one of the Walkers and as we set off we were soon being sent down back alleyways without bodyguards or armed escorts. And soon we came across a dead snake. See what I mean, even the vilest of low life succumbed to the devilish locals. An autopsy was considered but declined.

Soon we were in another passageway that took us past a Berlin Wall type construction. You have to pity the locals and be grateful that we were able to escape and go home later to our little enclaves where we could feel safe. But Tightarse took upon himself to bring out a table and provide a Drink

Stop extraordinaire that featured a variety of drinks and chocolates. But this Drink Stop was still a long ways out from the run site, but on a more positive note it was mostly downhill back to the run site and the river embankment meant that there was no short cutting...

Once everyone had finished nibbling at the cheese and biscuits table, our GM D Liva Rants called for the circle and asked Phantom for her thoughts on the Runners run. Phantom thought that it was a nice but different run and awarded it a run rating of 10/10. Next in with a report for the Walkers was Hardcase who commented on the long checks and then got into trouble by using Tightarses 'other' name, which cut short his other comments just as he awarded the run also with a rating of 10/10. It seems that maybe they could've been bought off. You know what these wealthy expats are like who lived in Asia for too long, are like... not me though...

Visitors and LTNS's was limited to only a few LTNS's made up of Maid Muffin; Crusher & Bell Boy.

Our regular stand-in RA (Megawatt) took over the circle from our GM and immediately called in Troppo for failing to close his car door. I rather think that Troppo might have got away with the issue had he not been wearing full military uniform in recognition of it being the 11th day of the 11th month. Somethings just have to be recognised. Next in for a Down Down was Hogshit for his handling of the aforementioned dead snake, which some thought was petrified. But I got to you, if I was left to room that ghetto late at night on my own, I'd be bloody petrified too... Apparently Dynamo was excited at the sight of said snake. Why I don't know, she would be used to snakes much larger back in her homeland of Indonesia. Not to mention the odd one-eyed trouser snake...

Next in was Cookie who was asked to explain what Dougite and old men have in common – Baby snakes in the bedroom. Sir Fumbles was embarrassed as the GM was asked to explain about trouble with ejaculations... All this as Replicar was brought in for a DD as he was looking like a Russian defector in a dark blue great coat. I kept thinking that he looked like a serial flasher who are known to roam late at night in such suburbs.

The floor was opened for Charges with Tightarse calling on Sir Fumbles as the Hash Flash who had left the circle at the talk about snakes. Then Troppo and Replicar were called in to acknowledge their being Poppy Wearers and remembering that the day was in memory of our fallen Heroes. Well done gentlemen. Lest we Forget!

Zero Hero's – On in Replicar – 1220 runs; followed by Megawatt – 420 runs & Mouth Organ – 210 runs. Congratulations all. And I'll belatedly acknowledge Cookie who completed her entry in the Big Red Book with 1200 runs

Birthdays – Tightarse was belatedly celebrating his 79th Birthday from Monday. And he didn't disappoint us, he gave us his version of the classic song - I Should've Danced All Night

The weeks Jokers were Inspector Gadget; Wenchy; Maid Muffin & Troppo. As usual the Irish took another hammering for being Oirish...

The Dummy Shorts were with Meladjusted who had taken the night off. So you can look forward to them making a guest appearance soon at a Friday Hash coming your way.

The Meal for the night was an Indian curry (two options plus rice) with poppadom's on the side. Plus, a slice of carrot cake as a means of celebrating Tightarse's birthday... Thank you Mountain Hawk for the delicious feed

The Circle was closed by Bell Boy leading us all in the FH3 Hash Hymn.
