

After several counts and a final tally 29 mad hashers came to Shiftys run. It was a great cool night after a hot few days. The breeze was certainly welcomed by all who attended. With a couple of car parks to choose from it was always obvious that most hashers would go to the wrong one first as indeed I did. Eventually everyone showed up at the right spot and the Friday madness began. The walkers romped home.

For the runners it was a slightly different story, Shifty was getting worried she thought the runners may have got lost. But low and behold just after eight we saw them approaching head lights and torches flashing. Shifty gave a big sigh of relief as did all those who were waiting for the wine to arrive. Once we had our wine we all felt better.

Runners Report

Replicar reported for the runners, he claimed to know the area well, yet he said he didn't go where he expected to go so it took him by surprise and he liked it. He gave a score of 9.

Walkers Report

Hardcase reported for the walkers, he didn't hold back and said it was too short. He must have forgotten that you can always walk the trail twice. He gave it a score of 9.

Visitors and LTNS

Rockbotton, Crusher, Yo Adrien, Lofty, Light my Fire and Sheep Shunter were all LTNS

Aids from Bunbury hash was our visitor.

Charges

Once again Mental Disorder was our stand in RA. He praised himself for the perfect weather and who were we to disagree.

Shifty was charged with looking after the guy's best interests, when she elected not to have the hashers parking in the same parking area where some back packers have been sleeping. Mental particularly mentioned the Swedish back packers who Shifty had seen prancing about nude when she set off early to set the run.

Replicar was charged with always been in trouble and been able to find anyone to lick the salt off his nuts. Wenchy did say she had had his nuts in her hands on many occasions.

Me Myself I was charged with not usually helping guys put their pants on, as tonight I had to aid Mental in putting his shorts on rather than taking them off.

Pickled Piker was charged with been on his phone in the circle. In his defence he was in fact talking to Shadow who surprisingly arrived very late and was parking in the wrong car park and calling PP for some assistance.

Charges from the Floor

None tonight.

Accolades

No accolades other than thanking Shifty for a great run and great food.

Jokers

There were 4 eager jokers all eager to give us a laugh or not as the case maybe.

Aids lead the pack a lengthy joke about a young Italian couple getting married and a strategically placed cabbage leaf. It was very funny.

Horny told her absolutely brilliant joke about chocolate and Mr Cadbury. It had us in stiches.

Troppo told a joke about friends getting shipwrecked.

Big Bang told one about an Italian and a Jewish guy.

They all gave us a good laugh.

Dummy Shorts.

Nominations were: Mental cos he needed help to put them on. Shadow for coming late, and Hogshit for not knowing where his car was parked. Shadow was nominated!
