When the GM called the circle, Tight Arse, as co-hare, gave the instructions to 33 runners/walkers to follow the “pink” brick road thru the school, and off we went in 35 degrees heat. The sea breeze helped to mitigate the heat radiating from the pavement, but some were reluctant to go full steam on the run.

Crossing Sterling highway, the trail was all sandy tracks along the railway line with few flour markings. Maybe tight Arse, being so tight, was saving the flour for the delicious cake we had for dessert.

Back to the pavement, we started the climb to the WW2 tunnels for the drink stop where we had a fantastic view of the Fremantle Port and the sunset. The nice breeze, along with the plenty bubbles and lollies made all take and extra time to admire the view before heading on on home.

Runners Report

Another Prick in the wall said the run was well set according to the weather, not too long and with some hills. It gave 9.7.

Walkers Report

D Liva Rant said it was a lovely walk, but as always that she follows Gadget they almost got lost, promised not to do it again, it was a 9.96 for her.

Visitors and LTNS

Never Hard made his yearly appearance and, along with returnees Rock Bottom, Crusher, Radar, MelAdjusted, Yo Adrian and Lofty had their welcome back down down.

Charges

-R/A. The nun asked Cardinal Mega to get a blessing for the remaining Lotto investment but, due to the lack of success of the blessings lately, the purchase of a "JUJU SPELL" online was recommended. The unproven idea would cost $243, it had no support since the blessings, although ineffective, were for free.

-R/A. The news from Queensland about banning 'G' strings and 'mankinies' at the beach, prompted the NUN to request DLivaRant for the design of her new bikini which was introduced to the circle in a bend over demonstration. Troppo, on the other hand, was requested to model the new FH3 mankini.

-R/A to Another Prick on the Wall for being the first one back home and fresh and cool as a cucumber. Did you really do the run?

Charges from the Floor

-Another Prick charged Clockwork Orange for having no hash gear, but an argument about her, wearing a hash 'G' string could not be resolved.

-Mountain Hawk charged Dynamo for embarking in a quest to look for a Toilet in 5 places and finally succeeding. Persistence always pays. Yo Adrian requested a demo of the "pipi" dance.

- Never Hard was charged with new shoes. No defence.

- Lofty and Troppo were charged for finding in the dark the owner of a lost friendly dog that came into the circle. After a quick description about Hash by the R/A, the dog owner joined the down down under 'dog shit' song.

- Yo Adrian charged Lofty for being the last one to the drink stop and giving the explanation of the reason of being late due to the dog having another "great shit".

Zero Heroes

Tight Arse was 560 and Another Prick in the wall completed his first 10 runs.
Book end for Gadget with 121 and Rock Bottom with 606.

Note: Please sign the FH3 Book so we can celebrate your run milestones.

Birthdays

Mountain Hawk and Dynamo wore the b'day hats and the mandatory hashy birthday song accompanied the down down.

General Business

-Hares needed for March dates onwards.

-Yearbook information to be sent to Gadget or Wenchy. Last year committee to send Gadget the promised info.

Jokers

- Mountain Hawk: 50th wedding anniversary couple recalling when they were 23 years old.
- Mental: Guy in the bar with the Rum & Coke problem.
- Lofty: Guy who farted so strong that pushed his guts out.
