RUN: 1799

Date: 27/02/ 2026

Hare: High Beam

Venue: Perry Lakes

30-ish Runners/Walkers paid for a run this week, the last run of summer, hosted by High Beam in the beautiful surrounds of Perry Lakes, Floreat.

Runners Report:

Troppo rated the run as "brilliant", needed a couple of false trails around the lake but brought it home with a drink stop – an excellent 10!

Walkers Report:

Butter Buns, our new song mistress, while put out with having to do some checks and false trails, sang the praises of a well-marked trail – another 10!

Reporters and the Hare joined together for a down-down to the tune of, "Hares on their dickie di-doe..."

Visitors & LTNS:

Arseholeo, Crusher & Rock Bottom, welcomed back with a down-down to: "They ought to be publicly pissed on ..." Great to see you again.

R.A. takes the floor:

of the closet in a tutu as the tooth fairy only added to the shock. But not one to dwell on the downs, our free-spirited RA found cause for celebration in the International Day of the Polar Bears (who knew). Bringing forth Troppo to celebrate also to a chorus of let me be your teddy bear. Thankfully, no one in the circle made the mistake of pressing his tummy to see if he talked ...

But the celebrations didn't end there, being the last run of summer, our RA searched the pack for an icon of summer and landed on White Pointer. He was probably spending his weekends lazing around on the sunny afternoons. To iron the kinks out – cool splash was supplied to melodic sounds of "in heaven there is no beer ..."

Then to our surprise, in the dignified manner of her GM-ness, Horny Flasher stepped forward to begin the Mardi Gras celebrations a day early, while the pack serenaded her with "... the saints go marching in ..." and "...she's alright ...".

Then it was limerick time. Inspector Gadget and Mountain Hawk provided one each that involved a little bit of ravishing, before Troppo, step forward and made a fine hash up ... unlike his jokes, he didn't have it written down and relied on his memory! That said they were acknowledged for their efforts with a down-down to "I like the splash..."

Charges from the Floor:

Sybil on White Pointer & Never Hard: taking the around to leaning on Inspector Gadget's car in the circle – those two less than upright members took their stiffeners to "Their stupid ...".

Mental Disorder on Mel Adjusted: apparently when booking travel for Interhash, he managed to spell Radar's name wrong. Not sure if Radar should have been given the down-down for trusting him! Down-down to: "Take it in your hand ..."

Mel adjusted on Inspector Gadget: for being a little impatient, ringing Hash Splash at five past six wanting a drink at the run site. Down-down to: "He's alright ..."

White Pointer on Shifty and Arseholeo: misbehaving on the run, pinching figs (or was that fig leaves for later?), hard to work out with all the suggestive body movements from White Pointer. Down-down to: "What a ..."

Tight Arse on White Pointer: for charges by charades, maybe it's a dirty mind but I really didn't guess fig pinching! Down-down: "This is your down-down song ..."

With all that, Mountain Hawk signed off with "on the road again" and a down-down to "She's true blue ..."

Dummy Shorts

Knee High was keen to pass on the shorts and a couple of strong contenders with Inspector Gadget for a bit of pole-dancing in public, but Mel Adjusted could not be forgiven for his spelling mistake. Knee High and Mel Adjusted shared a down-down to "He's stupid ..."

Jokers

Tight Arse and Inspector Gadget embraced the polar bear theme which went from funny to bad to worse ... so much so that Animule called for Troppo to share a joke. Not one to be asked twice, Troppo stepped forward with phone in hand, which maybe Animule then began to regret. Not to end on a groan, Bulldust rounded it out. Our stand-up comedians were given a down-down to "For they are jolly hashers ..."
