RUN: 1807

Date: 1/5/2026

Hare: Light My Fire

Venue: Eden Hill

The Run

No question, it was going to be a bloody cold night. Winter had arrived early, though on a positive point, it wasn't raining (or snowing...). Twenty Eight Hashers had turned out none the less and at the given start time of 7pm all gathered on the side of the carpark to hear from Sheep Shunter who was standing in for his better half Light My Fire as she was home cooking up a storm (as the Hash Scribe and stand-in On Sec, it is my prerogative to determine which way round this was going to go, He He...). The Runners were sent off to the right and the Walkers were held back for a few minutes to be told to go left. I couldn't hear anything else due to Shut The Fuck Up was barking at something... I also found out later that there was a Drink Stop not that I found it as neither did most of the pack whether they be Walkers or Runners...

Runners Report

Your most worthy GM Horny Flasher was back from her travels and she quickly got on with running the Circle and calling in Bull Dust for his interpretation of how the Runners Run went. As he was the first back to the Run Site it was perhaps fitting that he be asked for his thoughts and he claimed that the Run was 8 kms long as he stood in his Hash Shirt showing a pair of boobs in a negligee from a recent run. He claimed that it was long, hard and tricky at times. I wasn't sure if he had gotten off the topic... His score for the run was a staggering 12 (out of twenty...!!!).

Walkers Report

The run started with the Walkers wandering around like lost sheep (well let's face it, it was Sheep Shunter who had set the trail...). What's in a name you may well ask. Everyone was looking high and low for Farrows without success. Gadget ended up calling Sheep Shunter on his mobile to ask which way does the trail go? He was told Keep Going on the road you're on... It was quite a long way on before the first Farrows were found. Something like a 1/3 of the Walkers later lost the trail and came back early (I was one of them). White Pointer was called in for his verdict about the run (walk), to which he said that it was very lovely and scenic (his words) and that he had warmed up. Maybe that was something to do with the fact that he had brought along a Virgin Hasher (Sue) for her first Run...Consequently he was feeling generous and awarded the run a score of 9/10. Apparently only a small handful of Hashers found the Drink Stop, what a shame and a sad loss of free booz...

Visitors and LTNS

As previously mentioned, we had just the one visitor, Sue. Hopefully she will come back and join us (and White Pointer) for further FH3 Runs. The Long Time No See Hashers contained a whole gaggle of people making their way back to the FH3. First in was our esteemed GM, Horny Flasher. She was joined by Megawatt & Sybil; Buttered Buns; Biggus Dickus & Hawkeye, plus Slugger & Hogshit.

Charges from the RA - Sheep Shunter

First in was guess who? Yes, you got it, Inspector Gadget. As has become the usual question, do you know what day it is today? and as usual Gadget had no bloody idea. The RA enlightened us all by telling us that it was the First of May and therefor May Day. Gadget's guess of Fuck Up Day wasn't even close... Radar was next in and again was asked to play the game of Guess What Day it is (new topic obviously). She also drew a blank and was told that it was Sauvignon Blanc Day. She was then declared to be a wino. The RA then told us that only THREE Hashers made it to the Drink Stop, on in Sir Fumbles, White Pointer and Sue for a Down Down in celebration of their achievement. Everyone else are making appointments with Spec Savers or just maybe Sheep Shunter needs lessons on laying Farrows... Although it could be that Troppo did find the DS but missed a loop?? Who knows... Next in was Sir Fumbles (again) and tales of French chocolate par fait... More strange looks from the Circle. The RA's last blast was a Limerick about a bum on the floor that quickly went downhill from there.

Charges from the Floor

Megawatt called in Bull Dust re his squeaky Horn claiming that it was upsetting all the neighbourhood dogs. I believe that he had brought a different Horn with him this week. White Pointer called in Sir Fumbles claiming that he had been engaged in Fast Walking in order to impress the ladies. It wasn't clear if he refuted the charge, but both Hashers received the usual award of a Down Down.

Zero Heroes

It was a big night for Awards with Badges and Down Downs to the following achievers and their numbers. Menstrual Disorder – 100 Runs; Buttered Buns – 400 Runs; Mel Adjusted - 600 Runs; Radar – 600 Runs (achieved last week). Congratulations and well done everyone. A lot of time and effort goes into making these numbers and your enthusiasm is much appreciated by all your fellow Hashers.

Birthdays – None this week, so no cake (boo, hiss, sucks...)

General Business

Gadget updated circle re the long missing Tight Arse and Mountain Hawk as there were concerned members of the Hash asking about his well being after he spent some time in hospital for parainfluenza. He is pretty much over that but is now nursing a banged-up knee after his attempt to install a new washing machine. Hopefully not long before we see them back with us at the Hash.

Jokers

Jokers for the week were Gadget telling us about a phone survey about women and messages of love to their husbands. Cookie told us about a black eye, a large erection, a hospital and a wrong room. Troppo told us about Mary who had a little lamb and a duck, you'll have to work the rest out yourselves...

Dummy Shorts

They were last presented to Knee Hi who due to travel sent them back with Light My Fire. But last week despite there being a couple of nominations, it was voted for a Carry Over to stay with Knee Hi. This week saw Knee Hi return and she was expecting someone else would be wearing the Dummy Shorts. Nominations this week were Mental Disorder for saying that the shorts looked beautiful. Troppo for attaching his tow bar upside down and Bell Boy for not being sure he is. And of course, the last option was for a carry over with Knee Hi. It was a tight call and there was a second shout between Troppo and Knee Hi. Final decision is that they stay with Knee Hi.

The meal tonight was the not unexpected Thai Curry Special that only Light My Fire knows how to put together and share with everyone. And no one was disappointed, another great meal after a Hash Run.

InterHash 2026

There was an oversight on the night which I will address now. We forgot to wish all the FH3 members who are leaving Perth for InterHash in Indonesia, a safe trip, great times and a safe return home. Happy travels everyone, On On.

Song

The Friday Hash Hymn was led by Phantom.
